

Mr Noman Ahmed

Place of Residence: London

Sector: Property

Noman Ahmed was born in Northampton, England in 1977 and he is the only child to late Mr Abdus Shahid (Shopon Miah) and Mrs Momtaz Begum. He hails from the village of Angura, Beani Bazar, Sylhet.

Mr Noman Ahmed obtained his GCSE's from Aylward Secondary School, then he went on to complete a BTEC in Business Studies from Aylward Secondary School and later completed a GNVQ in Advance Business Studies from Enfield College in 1996.

Whilst studying he was working in supermarket chain Sainsbury's on a part time basis and then after leaving education he became a full time employee there working himself up from cashier and to a customer services supervisor and then trainee customer services manager. In 2003 he was given an opportunity by his uncle, Mr Abdul Latif, to open up a small household products convenience store in Whitechapel, East London. In his role he learnt the basics of business as well as the art of buying wholesale and selling at profit.

Later the same year both Mr Ahmed and his uncle closed the convenience store and refurbished the premises and opened up the store as Vestige Property Services. The business is still a success and was awarded Investors in People Award in 2006. Mr Noman Ahmed is one of the few top Bangladeshi Estate Agents running successfully in East London today, and he is only thirty years old.

Noman Ahmed has contributed to charitable causes however wishes not to reveal the nature of those donations.

Mr Ahmed is a young successful British Bangladeshi who has made great progress in the property sector.
