

Mr Sheik Tuahid

Place of Residence: Solihull/ Midlands
Sector: Media

Mr. Sheik Tuahid was the first son of Sheik Abdul Bari and Sheik Amina Khatun. In Bangladesh, his home was situated in the village of Baushi, Bishawnath Village in the district of Sylhet. There, he studied at the M.M College in Sylhet and gained a well-earned degree qualification. His earliest arrival in the UK was during the year of 1985. His enthusiasm for education was obvious as he decided to further his learning by attending the Mathew Bolton College. There Mr. Tuahid studied electronic engineering for a year (1994-1995).

His positive and encouraging approach towards the Bangladeshi community was without a doubt noticeable, and consequently it resulted in him becoming the General Secretary of Bangladeshi Society in Stoke-On-Trent, Staffordshire from 1987- 1990. In 1995, Mr. Tuahid was given the role of vice chairman and later the role of General Secretary of "Onuprash" Jatio Kobi Shangaton, an organization created with the aim to help the Bangladeshi community. Such roles were issued to him due to his previous capabilities and much knowledge.

Mr. Tuahid, known for his ability to overcome any challenges that may be forced upon his way through taking an analytical approach and through his involvement in journalism, founded and became the Chairman of the Midland Press Club in 2005, along with others. Mr. Tuahid decided to take up the role of Editor of Bazaar Voice with his professional background to help him achieve this. Being an expressive individual with a strong character, this seemed the ideal job for Mr. Tuahid. In addition, he was the editor of a Bengali magazine aimed at young Bangladeshis, named Paira. 'Jodi Pere Ashe Kobu', a poetry book written by Mr. Tuahid, was published in Bangladesh in 2006 and proved to thrive greatly. Mr. Tuahid continues to work hard not only to carry on his own success, but also to bring about good for the community.

At this moment in time, Mr. Tuahid is a representative of the Weekly Potrika and the weekly Bangla Mirror, two newspapers involved with the British Bangladeshi community. Married to Lilma Choudhury, he and his wife have three children named Sheik Hussain, Sheik Salman and Sheik Ferdus. Mr. Tuahid lives happily with his wife and children in the town of Solihull in the Midlands.
