9th August, 2019.

DEAR Mr Karim,

The Queen has asked me to thank you for your thoughtful letter of 13th June, sent on the occasion of the publication of the 2019 Edition of British Bangladeshi Who's Who.

Her Majesty was pleased to learn that the publication continues to highlight the work undertaken by British Bangladeshis in the local community and much appreciates your thoughtfulness in writing as you did.

In return, The Queen has asked me to convey her best wishes to all those featured and involved in producing this Twelfth Edition of British Bangladeshi Who's Who.

Yours sincerely,

Loyal Greetings Officer

Mr Abdul Karim.
The Mayor of London, Sadiq Khan said: “Bangladeshi Londoners have made an enormous contribution to the vibrancy and prosperity of our city for generations.

“The British Bangladeshi Who’s Who Awards offer an important opportunity to celebrate the achievements of Bangladeshi Britons leading and succeeding in every field -from business to medicine, media to sport.

“I’d like to congratulate all the winners and pay tribute to the nominees in every category. Your vision, resilience, passion and community spirit inspire us all.”
The British-Bangladeshi Who’s Who publication is a brilliant initiative to showcase the success stories and achievements of our very talented Bangladeshi-British Diaspora living in the United Kingdom. I am pleased to learn that its 2019 edition will be published shortly as I look forward to learning about the new generation of talented Bangladeshi-British personalities to be recognised this year.

The Government of Hon’ble Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina in its Vision 2021 has attached the highest priority towards the welfare and recognition of the contributions of the Bangladesh-British diaspora, who have relentlessly demonstrated their patriotism and love for Bangladesh, their ancestral home.

Their sacrifice and commitment in the mobilization of political support of the government and people of the United Kingdom during Bangladesh’s glorious War of Liberation is deeply valued by the Government of Bangladesh. The Bangladesh-British community through their hard work dedication and remittances continue to play a significant role in building a progressive and secular image of Bangladesh in the United Kingdom and enhance political, economic and people-to-people connectivity between the two nations. The expatriate Bangladeshis, specially their new generation is making their mark of excellence in every sphere of British society including in politics, business, art, culture, education and the services sector.

It is therefore, befitting that the Who’s Who Publication would be celebrating the talents of our vibrant Bangladeshi-British diaspora, thus inspiring their successive generations to carry forward the pursuit of excellence.

I wish the organizers of this initiative and the Who’s Who publication’s all success.

Foreword from the Editor

We have reached our first milestone as we celebrate the 12th year of this publication and launch gala dinner.

From humble beginnings the publication has grown at an exponential rate and so has the launch gala dinner. We have unearthed some of the real gems of our community.

As it grows we also find the challenge of limiting the number of profiles to a sensible quantity because the reality is that there are just so many successful British Bangladeshis, all with their own unique stories.

However the publication features what we believe to be a good selection of individuals from various walks of life representing the wealth of success to be celebrated amongst this unique and wonderful community.

I hope you enjoy this edition and I hope this is the first of many milestones for this publication.

15TH October 2019
Foreword from the Executive Editor

This year I find myself filled with a sense of contentment as I write this knowing that the British Bangladeshi Who’s Who has now made it to its twelfth year.

The Publication is all about celebrating the best of the British Bangladeshi community. The Publication is about you and your wonderful contribution to not only your community but also to Britain.

We must not forget the reasons behind this publication, and the rationale is twofold: Firstly, I and all those involved with this publication sincerely hope that those who feature in this year’s edition will be positive role models for the younger generation.

Secondly, and perhaps more importantly, at a time when various factions of the media and society are questioning the value of migration, this publication serves not only to dispel some of the myths about migrant communities but also highlights the positive socio-economic contribution made by the Bangladeshi community to Britain.

This year, like previous years, we will be awarding some meritorious individuals, who we believe have gone that extra mile. Amongst them, there are some household names and some rising stars.

I hope you enjoy the publication.

Nelson Mandela said: “there is no passion to be found in playing small - in settling for a life that is less than the one you are capable of living.” This ultimately sums up thriving personality Mahee Ferdhaus Jalil, who’s played a huge pivotal role in the British Bangladeshi community for the last 15 years. His one of the biggest success to date is establishing Channel S - the first free-to-air British Bangladeshi satellite Television Channel.

Born in Moulovibazar, Bangladesh, Mahee came to the UK in 1988 as a teenager. Like many of our British Bangladeshi champions, his early days in Britain were endured by hard struggles. Mahee however embraced these challenges with utter determination and focus. He was known for ‘dreaming big’ and wanted to make his visions a reality.

In 1994, after obtaining training and experience, he set up one of the largest accident management companies in the UK called ‘Prestige Auto Group’. The company saw steady growth and became a household name amongst British Asians.

Mahee’s greatest success to date however was the establishment of Channel S. He started dreaming of a fully functional Television Channel in the UK in 2002. Mahee wanted a television channel which would engage communities directly, highlight issues which matter the most in the lives of British Bangladeshis, empower communities with the power of information, and create awareness amongst the community about their rights, opportunities as well as responsibilities. Mahee went onto creating a professional, passionate and experienced team.

Finally on 16th December 2004, Channel S started its official broadcast. Mahee saw a dream which eventually became a platform for all British Bangladeshis, inspired a generation in achieving their goals, took our community back to their roots, and reminded our younger generation of their history and heritage.

Mahee’s vision of launching the Channel was no more a community channel – it became international through a partnership with humanitarian organisation - through generous community donations. He believes we can't take money with us , so invests in the community and good causes.

A passionate entrepreneur, Mahee is also successfully running his various other business interests - from property development to Law and IT. He enjoys mentoring young business enthusiasts so that they are able to settle a life capable of living.

Muhib travelled to the UK in 1972 to start a new chapter in his life. Upon arrival, Muhib enrolled at Robert Montifiore Secondary School, where he furthered his secondary education. Whilst studying, Muhib worked two part time jobs at a local Indian restaurant and a garments factory.

Upon finishing secondary education, Muhib's zeal to become a successful business man was clear. He was determined to make a successful career and improve their family's living standards. This was at a time when many British Bangladeshis were heavily involved in the garments trade.

In 1979, Muhib continued that trend by establishing, with the help of a few business partners, his own garment factory, Modern Embroidery, in Tower Hamlets. The business rapidly became very successful. Following the success in the garments trade, he ventured into the catering business and in 1982 was a business partner of the Indian restaurant he worked in as a teenager, India Grill, in Tower Hamlets, London. Henna Chowdhury was born in Syhlet Bangladesh in 1975. She settled in Worthing, West Sussex at the age of 10 with her mother, younger sister and older brother. Henna attended the Girls High School in Worthing where she excelled and achieved excellent exam results despite only learning English on her arrival in Britain a few short years earlier. Following her education Henna enjoyed a short but productive career in the Civil Service before marrying and devoting her time to raising a young and boisterous family.

Councillor Chowdhury has always had a keen interest in the community and is especially concerned with equality of opportunity and equal rights for all. Whilst raising her family she was involved as an advocate for youth and child support and acted as a community interpreter for a number of organizations involved in domestic violence. Mrs Chowdhury has worked for local charities supporting BME women in their struggle to overcome racial and intra-community prejudice, domestic violence and lack of educational provision. Henna has worked for charities and local businesses along the entire south coastal strip providing educational courses and training in health and hygiene, business funding as well as organizing community events and charity fundraising with a special emphasis on Women’s Rights and Equality.

For a short 7 month period in 2010 Henna had a complete change of direction and was a presenter on Bangla TV where she hosted a music channel show broadcast to the UK and Europe. With her keen sense of social justice and fairness for all Henna felt the need to do more, to lead the way for Ethnic, especially Bengali, women, showing them that they have a voice and an important part to play in a successful, modern British multicultural, multi-ethnic society and as such she joined the Labour Party in 2017 where she is currently BAME Officer.

In late 2018 Henna was adopted to fight the safe Conservative ward of Gaisford in the 2019 Worthing Borough Council Elections, a ward which had been in Conservative control for over 50 years. Despite the party’s poor showing nationally Henna won the ward with a landslide victory, achieving a swing to Labour of 13%. This victory made Henna the first female Muslim councillor in the history not only of Worthing but of West Sussex and was reported worldwide, a fact she is immensely proud of as it is an encouragement for women with no background in politics or business to come forward, to make a difference and to have a voice.

Henna was elected onto both the licensing committee and the overview and scrutiny committees of Worthing Council following her election and has been a devoted advocate promoting both local businesses and the accountability of public servants ever since.

Henna married in 1995 and has three beautiful daughters, Fariha, Mariya and Tasnim. Fariha has just graduated from Queen Mary University London with a degree in Psychology. Mariya is in her 2nd year at college, whilst Tasnim is in her last year at the same Girls High School Henna attended. Henna’s husband Milad is a well known and respected local businessman.

Abdul Karim Nazim is a very successful businessman, property developer and community activist.

It all started in 1963, when Abdul Karim Nazim’s father and uncle opened Maharani in Camden. At this point the Clapham branch was already opened but his father was not involved. His father was his role model as he was growing up so he wanted to get involved in the family business too. In 1984 Nazim joined the family business and has been involved ever since.

Since being involved in the business, there are a lot of things that motivate him but also make him smile. For example, being based on Camden High Street, he gets to meet new people from different background every day as Camden is a huge tourist attraction. Also being able to maintain a good relationship with his regular customers and local businesses is his favourite part in having a business. Furthermore, being one of the oldest restaurants in Camden, more and more people wish to come and visit them, making their loyalty to Camden High Street their unique selling point. As he has worked in Indian restaurants from a young age, he understood the industry a lot more and realised that he would need to create some different flavours in order for him to stand out. As he is from Bangladeshi heritage, he knew about the ingredients used in an Indian restaurant which is why he was able to create his speciality dishes with ease. They cater for all palettes, whether you like your curry extremely mild or extremely hot with desi twist.

Motivation plays a big role in any business, and it is up to the owner/manager to ensure that the staff is motivated. His head chef has been with him for over 20 years along with one of his waiters. Due to this loyalty, he makes sure they enjoy working at Maharani.

As this is the 21st century, it is crucial to be using and keeping up to date with modern technology. They started off with using the basic Just eat machines but as social media is a huge thing now, they are slowly getting onto social media platforms. They are already on Instagram.

It is not easy to run a restaurant and make it a successful business but the key ingredient to doing so is being patient and love what you are doing. If you don’t love the industry you are in, you will not love your business enough to make it a success.

Nasir Jilani serves as a Firefighter and is attached to a fire station in South London. Nasir was promoted to the rank of Crew Commander this year, this means he is an Officer In Charge or an Incident Commander at various types of operational emergency incidents and can be mobilised to any part of London at any time.

He joined the London Fire Brigade (LFB) in early January 2006 and is one of the first British Bangladeshis to serve in the LFB.

Nasir was born in 1979 in the Sylhet division of Bangladesh. His late father Janfor came to the UK in the 1950’s as a young man in search for a better life, to work and to serve in the LFB.

Nasir’s father was a selfless man who always put other’s first. Throughout the 1960’s and 1970’s he assisted numerous people, including his own extended family members and friends to settle in the UK and to this day those family members, friends, their children and grandchildren approach Nasir to acknowledge and appreciate that without Nasir’s father’s assistance they probably would not be where they are in life and that he was such a great man.

In the mid 1980’s Nasir as a child, his mother and siblings emigrated to the United Kingdom. Nasir spent his early years in the Limehouse district of the East End of London before moving to Bethnal Green. His home was above a fire station during his childhood and was the source of his inspiration to become a Firefighter. After attending college, Nasir was thrilled to get through the Firefighter selection process in 2004/5.

For Nasir, it has always been about serving the community he grew up in, helping those that are less fortunate and assisting those that are vulnerable in the Bangladeshi community due to generational, language and cultural barriers. Nasir always reminds himself that it’s important to remember one’s roots and to give something positive back to those who look up to him as a role model.

At the request of the Muslim Council of Britain Nasir made a YouTube video for them in 2011, (Role Models- British Muslim Professionals Serving the Community), this was to highlight the excellent contributions made by British Muslims in the emergency services, particularly during times of heightened security alerts in the UK.

Nasir was twice voted as a finalist runner up in the Civil Servant and Muslim in the Community categories at the British Muslim Awards 2016 & 2019 as well as carrying out radio interviews for other organisations, his profile also appeared in the 2015 edition of BB Power & Inspiration in the Uniform Section and many other publications.

Nasir has been involved in a number of outreach initiatives over the years with the LFB including the Notting Hill Carnival and the Boishakhi Mela which are held annually. Ahmad is a British Bangladeshi who has been involved in the catering industry for nearly thirty years, and it is fair to say that he has been more than a success.

His first restaurant was opened in Milton Keynes in 1980 and since then his catering empire has grown stronger and stronger. From the moment Ahad entered the catering trade, he saw a vision to create an ultimate shrine to Indian food. In 1998, his plans began to take shape, and finally in early 2002, the dream became reality.

Jaipur came to an end in 2018 and Ahad received the Paul Harris Fellowship award of appreciation by Rotary International.

As the former owner of the famous Jaipur Restaurant in Milton Keynes, Ahad is the man behind the largest purpose built Indian restaurant in Europe.

The Jaipur Restaurant itself is an architectural landmark building of great beauty, and one that Ahad refers to as his own ‘mini Taj Mahal’. The food and the service inside is equally impressive, having won practically every available award to Indian cuisine. Furthermore, although initially Jaipur was solely an Indian Restaurant, it now houses a Thai restaurant, the Orchid Lounge, on the first floor.

For all his success as a restaurateur, he is equally as successful in other fields – one of which is fundraising for charities.

Two of Ahad’s favourite causes are the Jaipur Limb Project of the Rotary International and Save the Children charity. The Jaipur Limb Project set up in Jaipur, India, is engaged in manufacturing prosthetic limbs for children and adults who have lost their limbs due to disease or accidents. The provision of a new limb gives them a life changing experience enabling them to a full life in many different ways. Ahad is a major supporter and contributor to the project during the last twelve years, raising over £30,000 through the Annual Charity Dinner.

Ahad is also a high profile and integral member of Britain’s Bangladeshi community and has supported the development of schools, mosques, madrassas and other charity projects in his parental village in Sylhet.

He was also Cabinet member of Regeneration, Localisation and Community Partnership from 2006 to 2009 and Education and youth Services for 2005. Councillor Ohid Ahmed was the Cabinet Member for resources and performance in 2009 and was short listed for prestigious LGIU award for his outstanding contribution to financial performance in Tower Hamlets.

Published author Nazia Ali embraced her talent for writing from a young age. Her earliest accolade was the Young Author’s Award in Bridgeport, CT. Followed by an original short story titled From Bangladesh to America—the piece was published in a local magazine. Since then, a dream had been born. Her vision is for her writing to be a practical tool for her readers to build a relationship with their creator. Ali’s work explores dawah and community building.

As a Bangladeshi native, she was highly inspired by her parents—native author, Manoara Shanur and charity worker, Mohammed Choudhury. Kodomtoli, Sylhet was home to Ali in her earlier childhood. Growing up, Ali has spent a good part of her life in the U.S. where she has studied and spent her adolescence. Her family moved to the states in 1988. While living there, she was experimental with her writing and honed her talent. Ali later met the love of her life and moved to the U.K. where she settles today.

Debut book, Healthy and Halal Choice (2012) was Ali’s introduction to healthy lifestyle choices and building a balanced life. The book invites different faiths and ethnic groups to try different recipes that promote a healthy lifestyle. Her debut was well received and made several world appearances including an international book fair in Frankfurt, Germany, book signings in the United States, United Arab Emirates, and Bangladesh. At the local level, Ali was recognized and awarded by Channel S for Healthy and Halal Choice.

After outstanding debut success, Ali released her second book, Into the Light from the Darkness—a fictional novel about a woman’s journey towards Islam. When asked about style and thematic expression, Ali chooses to cite the Quran and Sunnah in her writing. She chooses to preserve the authenticity and the message of her Creator and drive examples of the Prophet (PBUH) and his followers. In 2016, her show ‘Healthy Iftar’ debuted for TV One, helping people find the sweet spot where healthy and delicious meet. In the same year, Ali was invited to several local schools to teach parents how to give up the junk food culture and prepare healthy, cost efficient packed lunches that the kids enjoyed eating.

In 2017, Ali’s new book ‘From my kitchen, to yours’ was published by AuthorHouse.

Kazi began to support his local community by giving free property advice, and this became so popular within his community. Convinced by the success of this, Kazi began hosting his own TV show which is currently live on NTV every Monday from 8pm to 9pm, The Property Show with Kazi Arif, which can also be found on Facebook or Youtube. During the show, Kazi gives free advice and up-to-date news to the public, as well as discussing any property related issues with them. Viewers can also call in to the show and ask Kazi questions. Kazi is now a pioneer in the property talk show industry within his own community. Celebrating their 11th anniversary this year, Prime Estate Agents (Member of ARLA, NAEA) are one of the most established independent estate agencies in London. The Property Show with Kazi Arif is also achieving unprecedented success. None of this could have been possible without Kazi Arif’s unique vision and unwavering hard work throughout the process.

Anyone who believes that women can’t or shouldn’t fight needs to meet Ruqsana Begum. Ruqsana has also won a number of British titles and European championship gold medals.

Ruqsana fights Muay Thai kickboxing, often referred to as the ‘Art of Eight Limbs’, the national sport of Thailand, where it is far more popular than football. Unlike regular boxing, competitors can use any combination of punches, kicks, knees and elbows to strike an opponent during a bout.

Ruqsana’s sporting career is only scratching the surface. She is an inspirational figure way beyond her own community. Saidur came to UK with his Family at the age of 19. As a student Saidur studied at Moulvibazar College and he also studied Business Management at Westminster College in UK.

Saidur is a highly successful entrepreneur and renowned businessman who is actively involved in the catering industry for over 25 years.

His ancestral home is in the village of Sabia (Hazi Bari) Moulvibazar, Bangladesh. His father Late Alhaz Mohammed Batir Miah was a successful business man. Saidur established his first business Great India in 1958 at Sloane Square, Chelsea, London. During that time there were very few restaurants owned by Bangladeshis; there were only a few places where new arrival Bangladeshis used to get help and Great India was one of them.

He started work at his father’s Restaurant Great India. Later he established several businesses by himself. Currently the chief treasurer of BCA.

A keen servant to the needy, Saidur and his family have sought to contribute towards the development of his homeland, helping to establish Masjids, Madrasas and schools in Moulvibazar, and support social welfare institutions providing various forms of assistance to the poor and needy in Bangladesh. Saidur is married to Bahar Y Rahman (Dipa) in 1995. Together they have 3 sons and 1 daughter.

The brothers are donors to several charities and these include supporting a Cancer Research Charity in honour of their late mother, and also a charity which specialise in treating problems and illnesses related to kidneys, in honour of their late father.

The brothers also established a charity organisation called J Brothers, whereby the project supports vulnerable and helpless families in Bangladesh by providing sheltered homes, installation of water pumps and donating land.

Jamal quotes “Charity should begin from home. We are inspired from the love and feeling that my father and uncle showed to the people of Bangladesh. So we do not go for formalities, rather, we have started our charity work from our own village.”

Today Bangladeshis are on the way to portray themselves as a successful community in the UK and Taj Stores is one of those names of successes. The brothers have their own hobbies such as travelling, jet skiing, photography and golf.

Mr Abdul Hai Khalique (Junel), Mr Abdul Quayum Khalique (Jamal) and Mr Abdul Muhith (Joynal) are the three brothers behind the internationally renowned grocers Taj Stores in Brick Lane. They took over the business from their late father Alhaj Abdul Khalique who came from Baur Bagh, Moulvibazar, Bangladesh.

Junel, Jamal and Joynal all grew up in Brick Lane, East London and progressed their education to Milestone Preparatory Private School in Bond Street, West London.

Junel studied at Architectural College before joining the family business. His passion for architecture and design saw him design and build his dream home in Essex. Jamal on the other hand attended the private American International College where he completed a Diploma in business before himself joining the family business followed swiftly by the youngest sibling Joynal.

People who can, they achieve it by their quality, hard work, love and trust. Likewise, Taj Stores is the name of an inspiration to British Bangladeshs in the UK. Taj Stores started its journey in 1936, by their late uncle Abdul Jabbar who then passed the business to the late Alhaj Abdul Khalique. Taj Stores is now on its way to celebrate the 80 years of its pride. Outside Bangladesh, if there is any business that has been operating with such goodwill and benevolence that is the Taj Stores. They are also Directors of Taj Properties Construction/Investment Ltd, NRB Bank Ltd and the UK-BCCI. Besides running Taj Stores, the brothers also have other business interests. The three ‘Taj’ brothers hold a very healthy portfolio of properties located across the capital as well as several properties abroad, including Dubai.

The brothers are donors to several charities and these include supporting a Cancer Research Charity in honour of their late mother, and also a charity which specialise in treating problems and illnesses related to kidneys, in honour of their late father.

They also established a charity organisation called J Brothers, whereby the project supports vulnerable and helpless families in Bangladesh by providing sheltered homes, installation of water pumps and donating land.

Anwar Choudhury (BSc, MBA) was Her Majesty’s High Commissioner to Bangladesh from 2004 to 2008.

Mr Choudhury has had a unique and distinguished career having served in British Industry, The Royal Air Force, The Ministry of Defence and The Cabinet Office. He is the first senior British Ambassador from a British Asian background and also one of the youngest to achieve this level of posting.

He started his career in Industry as a Design Engineer. This was followed by the Royal Air Force and the Ministry of Defence where he managed a large team of civilian scientists and senior military personnel. As Assistant Director, he was responsible for developing Ministry of Defence’s strategies and policies aimed to bring about the integration of Defence systems within the MOD, NATO and Allies.

Mr Choudhury then moved from the MOD to the Cabinet Office where he was Director of Policy in the Office of the e-Envoy. He was responsible for leading the vision and policy for UK Government’s ambition to become a leading knowledge economy and the best place for e-government. He left the Cabinet Office to join the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and initially worked on strategy and policy issues before taking up his posting as High Commissioner to Bangladesh in May 2004.

Mr Choudhury completed his assignment as High Commissioner to Bangladesh in May 2008 and became Director of International Institutions, Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

Mr Choudhury’s main interests are in policy for radical change in government and the potential of the information revolution for the developing world economies. On a personal note, he is married with three children. He is currently the British Ambassador to Peru.

His hobbies include Cricket, Bridge, Bengali Folk music and an addiction for Bangladeshi cuisine.

Amirul Choudhury is a high-profile entrepreneur with businesses in the telecommunications, property and media sectors.

He is the Managing Director and a major shareholder of Janomot, the favourite weekly newspaper of the Bangladeshi community in the UK.

Mr Choudhury is also Managing Director of ChyTel, a wholesale distributor of mobile phone handsets based in Tower Hamlets, London.

Founding his telecommunications business in 1994 at the start of the second generation mobile phone revolution, which transformed mobile phones into multi-media devices, ChyTel has grown into a familiar brand among the Bangladeshi community.

Mr Choudhury was among the first generation of Asian businessmen to have a mobile phone dealership in the market introducing T-Mobile (previously known as one2one) in the Asian market.

With many ethnic groups previously excluded from the mobile phone market because the large mobile phone companies marketed their goods in English only, Mr Choudhury negotiated deals bringing low cost and easy to understand tariffs and terms to ethnic communities in the UK. By translating the marketing material into a number of languages including Urdu, Hindi, Turkish and Polish, it can be claimed that he introduced mobile phone technology to the hundreds of thousands of people from ethnic minorities in the UK.

ChyTel distributes mobile phones throughout UK from its head office in Tower Hamlets and it also offers a walk-in Nokia Care repair service and a retail shop at the premises. In 1997 Mr Choudhury became a major shareholder of Janomot, the first weekly Bengali newspaper in the UK, and has since made a major contribution to its growth and stability. It is a highly respected newspaper well known for its editorials on social and community issues. It was Mr Choudhury’s policy to use these editorials to bridge the gap between communities and help Bangladeshis integrate into the British way of life. Today Janomot has become the UK’s largest circulation Bengali newspaper with a readership in excess of 40,000 a week.

Through his newspaper ownership, Amirul was elected Vice President of the London Bangla Press Club in 2008 and has retained this role ever since. The Club is the umbrella organisation for all Bangladeshi print and electronic media in the UK.

Mr Choudhury also has a portfolio of properties that includes both residential and commercial. In 2010, Mr Choudhury was appointed as a business adviser to the London 2012 Olympic Games by the executive Mayor of London Borough of Tower Hamlets. In this prestigious role, Mr Choudhury mentored small- and medium-sized businesses in East London helping to show them how they could benefit from the Olympic Games and build sustainable long-term businesses.

This role was extended past the Olympic Games and Mr Choudhury continues to provide advice and guidance to help local businesses grow and flourish.

As a great believer in corporate social responsibility, Mr Choudhury has been a sponsor and a benefactor of many social, cultural and sport activities across East London, particularly in the Borough of Tower Hamlets, during his business career over the past two decades. To give youngsters access to recreational activities and encouraging them to take up sport, he is a major sponsor of badminton and football clubs in Tower Hamlets.

He was educated at Holloway Secondary School, North London and at Hackney College where he gained a National Diploma in Business and Finance.

Mamun Chowdhury is a highly successful British businessman with over 25 years experience in the design and manufacturing of high-end outerwear. He is from Moynabad, Chunarughat, Habigonj.

Having completed his education in Bangladesh, after a short period in the Middle East, Mamun arrived in Britain in December 1991.

Hailing from Bangladesh, Chowdhury’s father and grandfather were businessmen, and he was raised on a diet of deals and negotiations. But the 1971 Independence War destroyed the family businesses and the Chowdhurys lost everything and, in 1991, Mamun came to England hoping to build a business here.

Being innately an entrepreneur, he immediately started setting up his own business. In 1994 he established London Clothing Limited, importing garments from abroad and selling to clients in the UK and rest of Europe. This was supported by setting up his own factory to manufacture garments here in the UK.

An inspirational man, audaciously attempted at selling shirts from his suitcase to Marks & Spencer in 1992. But that experience cemented Chowdhury’s determination to make it. He was inspired by the story of Michael Marks and Thomas Spencer.

Mamun Chowdhury saw an opportunity to manufacture outerwear, designed with a high level of customer involvement, and selling wholesale to trade targeting the sub-couture market. Queen’s Award winner London Tradition was born.

Quality and skilled craftsmanship rooted in London’s heritage and culture are the label’s defining features,” says Mamun Chowdhury, citing state-of-the-art equipment and technology. “Our dedication to detail is relentless and unwavering.” Multiple quality checks throughout the manufacturing process ensure consistency. The brand is also proud to offer a fair working environment for its employees.

Today, London Tradition is particularly popular in the Japanese market, and the brand has grown largely by word-of-mouth. Winning the Queen’s Award made a significant difference bringing a huge amount of publicity and interest from new customers.

The company’s future looks exciting, including a new high-end fashion label, Churchill of London, and an e-commerce website aimed at the retail market.

He has a clear strategy to grow organically in existing markets and enter into new ones.” No suitcase required.

Mamun envisions his Company to be the leading luxury heritage outerwear brand in the world and very popular in the Japanese and European market including 17 other countries.

Away from his successful career, Mr Haque enjoys nothing more than travelling the globe. This seems only natural considering his previous career in aviation technology. He has been to many different countries around the world, but feels that Malaysia is his favourite. He cites the friendly nature of the Malaysian people, the cuisine, the value and the fact that it is a strong Islamic nation as reasons why he finds it so favourable. However, he has also come away from places such as the Maldives and Canada with glowing reports.

Aside from travelling, Mr Haque indulges his hobbies of badminton, going to the gym and watching films, although with such a schedule it must be hard for him to fit these in. Mr Haque is married to Mary Rahman who runs her own successful London based PR company, which specialises in promoting clients hailing from the arts, theatre, film and fashion industries.

Tipu is the eldest son of Al Haj Md. Redwanul Hoque (deceased) and Mrs Rufia Begum from Sreeramshi Degir par, Dist.Sunamganj.

Tipu came to the UK in 1989 to join his father, a well-respected restaurateur, establishing the Sonar Bangla Restaurant in 1968 at 46 Hanbury Street, which was both a successful business and crucial forum drumming up support for the Bangladesh Independence Movement in 1971. His father was also an international political organiser for the Jatiya Janata Party.

After studying for a BA Education at MC College Sylhet, Tipu moved and continued his studies in London in English, Computing and MCSE (Microsoft Certified System Engineering).

After gaining invaluable restaurant experience for three years, Tipu ran his father's restaurant before owning and running his own restaurant in 1997.

In 1998, merging his IT knowledge and practical restaurant experience, Tipu and his nephew developed customised EPOS software for restaurant/takeaway businesses. The software used in-house was developed and sold to restaurants/takeaways.

Tipu's initial aspiration to do something positive for the community politically was transformed into helping to change restaurant business culture introducing technology into restaurant businesses by removing the fear of change and technology and making the software user friendly. Despite early business resistance, Tipu foresaw EPOS as an essential business tool, however small the business, which it has become today.

After starting his software business in 1998, Tipu is now the director owner of Unisoft Solutions Limited. A thriving supplier of specialist catering software to more than 1,000 restaurant/takeaway businesses with a local, national and international customer base.

Despite early setbacks, Tipu's persistence and firm belief that running a successful business is more than material success but requiring integrity, professionalism, adaptability and openness to advice remains central. Unisoft's survival and advance are a testament to Tipu's self-belief, work ethic and strong religious faith contributing to success.

Tipu and Unisoft continue to adapt utilising the latest technology with some staff working remotely in Europe, North America and the Asia Pacific.

Tipu runs the business from part of a building originally home to the family restaurant business. Staying close to his roots keeps him well-grounded and appreciative of the support received over the years. He acknowledges the support of family, especially his father, and long-term friends and colleagues including Asfar, Nisar, Abu and Gary. Tipu also recognises the continued loyal customer support since 1998, without which he could not have survived and thrived. Commitment to putting customers first is reflected in 95% of business sales originating from customer recommendations.

Tipu's main focus in life apart from family and business is active support of community voluntary organisations in the UK and Bangladesh and enjoying martial arts.

Tipu has one younger brother Mohammed A.Hoque and two sisters Salma and Halima. He is a dedicated family man, married to Mrs Rumena Jamjam Chowdhury and has two children, a son E.Hoque Mahdi and daughter Mahira Ansa Hoque. They live together with Tipu's mother in Hanbury Street, off Brick Lane.

He was comprehensively involved in influencing and shaping government policy on immigration detention, legal practice and policy as a senior stakeholder representing the interests of vulnerable detainees being processed through the government’s ‘One Stop’ and ‘Fast-Track’ policies whilst held in immigration detention.

Sanam Mia embarked in his business career at the age of 19 in 1989 in the catering industry. Subsequently his business portfolio expanded into the family real estate, cash and carry business (both retail and wholesale) known as SHA Cash & Carry, remittance industry and many more.

However, Sanam’s main passion and interest was and remains the global remittance industry. He is the Founder and CEO of Worldwide West 2 East Services Ltd t/a SHA global. He has played a key role within the U.K in developing and growing the outflow of remittance by British Bangladeshi ex-pats living and working in the U.K to Bangladesh within the guidelines of the U.K Governments financial and regulatory bodies. In more recent years he has started to expand his operations into Europe, namely Portugal, Spain and Italy.

Remittance is a vital source of income for the families, friends and charity organisations not only in Bangladesh but in all third world countries globally. Sanam is a very proud and successful player in this industry on behalf of the Bangladeshi community.

His entrepreneurial streak has naturally led him to become involved in many other business enterprises; however never forgetting his roots and in line with Bangladeshi family tradition, he has also engaged in many social & welfare organisations.

Sanams main activities in the UK are SHA Global - Money Transfer Operator (U.K. And Europe) working closely with and in partnership with some of the largest money remittance companies in the world such as SmallWorld LCC and Xpress Money, Trustee and Public Relations Officer of Greenwich Islamic Centre (one of the largest and most Islamic multi-diverse centres in the whole of U.K) and he is a Director of Edwards Estates Agent.

Sufi Miah is the Managing Director of ATN Bangla UK, a director of the British Bangladesh Chamber of Commerce and a successful property developer with a portfolio of properties in the UK and abroad. Sufi moved his home in 2004 from a deprived part of West London to a luxury villa in one of UK’s most expensive areas of Cuffley, Hertfordshire. He owns a fleet of luxury vehicles ranging from Aston Martin to Range Rover but Sufi still remembers his humble days when he did not have enough money for a bus fare.

Sufi Miah and his family came to the UK in the early 1980’s, he is the third son of Haji Abdur Rahman, and was born in Chandshir Kapon village of Bishwanath in the Sylhet district of Bangladesh. His early childhood life started from a deprived inner city London borough, living in a small over-crowded flat in a council block, his parents worked hard to support the family. Sufi attended Sir William Collins School but seeing his parents struggle to support the family he took on the challenge to improve their situation and to give them a better quality of life. He would get up very early before school started, so that he could go out and distribute local newspapers. After school he worked at a local confectionary shop until late in the evening. And during the weekends he worked outside in the cold on a market stall in Camden Market, where he would start work at the crack of dawn and finished his shift in the evening. The money that he made he gave it to his parent so they don’t have to work so hard. Sufi’s determination came from his father, a hardworking man who gave up everything for his children and always taught them to strive to become better people.

Sufi described those early teenage years of his life as the defining moment of his life. He says with a passion: “I was someone that took challenges in life in my stride. I worked hard, knowing that I had to take responsibility, helping my father to support my family. In those years I learnt the values of hard work, family commitment and dedication that has made me the person I am today”.

It was clear that at a young age Sufi had an entrepreneurial spirit and with his early days of working on the market stalls gave him the street-smart edge that enabled him to spot a deal. Sufi’s first business venture was in buying and selling cars, he did that on the side of his full-time job at Clarks. The car sales was making him profit but not enough to make a real difference, as someone for whom Sir Richard Branson was the ultimate role model, that was never going to be enough.

He decided to research and explore the opportunities in the property investment market. And with his father’s advice and guidance he embarked on the property ladder and made his first house purchase at the tender age of just 20 years old. That was the catalyst for a successful property portfolio that he has grown from the mid 1990’s and that is still growing today. Sufi is currently developing high-end luxury villas across Greater London.

Sufi is actively involved in various charitable programmes and is currently supporting poor people in a village in Zakigonj, Bangladesh, where he solely funds the running of a Madrasha. In the near future he intends to develop this Madrasha to help students who wish to complete a Hafiz course. Sufi is married to Mrs Shumi Islam, who is also his business partner and they are blessed with 4 children, Sahil, Isha, Niyaz and Eva.

Sufi and his son Sahil are passionate supporters of Arsenal football club and they are both season ticket holders. Sahil is a talented footballer and is currently being professionally coached and is keen to play professional football. However if he has any of his father’s dedication, skill and commitment, he already possesses the strong foundations to make this a reality.

His passion for cooking came from his mother and he began his apprenticeship as a teenager working in a succession of restaurants. His ‘job interview’ was cooking a meal for his father who proceeded to eat it without comment before disappearing upstairs to talk with his wife. The general consensus was ‘the boy can cook.’ Abul is one of an elite group of ‘best of British’ chefs who participated in the Taste of Britain Curry Festival which tours the world promoting the unique style of British Indian fusion cooking that has developed in the UK.

During the Curry Life's Taste of Britain festival, Abul had the opportunity to work alongside highly acclaimed Michelin starred chefs like, Dominic Chapman, Mark Poynton and Rupert Rowley. Mahbub Murshed is a name for his role in making accountancy an art, bringing accounting into the drawing room and creating a new dimension to his profession. His success story is now a sensation in the British Bangladeshi community and media. His live TV programme, “Accountancy with Mahbub Murshed” is probably the first ever and the longest running accounting and tax advisory programme in the known world.

This only happened because of his vision, hard work, dedication and passion.

Mahbub Murshed, a Certified Practising Accountant, was born in 1962 in Tangail, Bangladesh. Having acquired a government scholarship from Bangladesh in 1982, he went to Bulgaria to study Computer Engineering at Technical University of Varna.

It was from here that he would graft his way to create one of the largest accountancy firms in East London. Upon arrival in Britain in 1987, it became evident that a qualification from a former communist country was not going to be easy for him to acquire a job in his field. With this in mind, he made the brave decision of starting from scratch and changing his path to accountancy. It was late Mr MS Zoha, a prominent Bengali accountant, who inspired Mr Mahbub. Mr Mahbub used to work for one of Mr Zoha’s clients and the turning point of his life was when he went to Mr Zoha’s office to collect his P45 and being offered a job in his office in 1991. Instead of using the conventional method of manual book keeping and accounting, Mr Mahbub became the pioneer among British Bangladeshis by using his computer programming skills to write his own software.

After being in the shadow of Mr Zoha for nearly 10 years and gaining invaluable work experience and academic qualifications, Mr Mahbub decided to set up his own accountancy firm, Mahbub and Co, in 2001 with his younger brother Shah Arif. Starting off with just one employee and a handful of small clients, it was a huge risk for anyone to start with a fragile business in a competitive market. But through dedication, multilingual skills and sincerity, Mr Mahbub was able to expand his business from strength to strength. His friendly professional approach towards his clients has given him a name, “The Accountant with a Smile”.

Additionally Mr Mahbub has supported many of the youth with work experience and career development. Currently Mahbub and Co is holding the ACCA Gold status as an employer, awarded only to the firms which provide high quality work experience in accountancy. After serving the community for more than a decade, Mr Mahbub launched his new and unique initiative to fulfill the community’s need for accountancy related issues. He is the key person together with NTV Europe to start producing the programme “Accountancy with Mahbub Murshed”. He believes in empowering the community. So, rather than bringing the people to the accountant’s office he went live on TV to answer the questions in his own capacity.

Being inspired by the success of this TV programme, he decided to set up a training institute in conjunction with his firm where school leavers, accounting students, newly qualified accountants and unemployed people could gain hands-on training and practical knowledge. The initial purpose of this training programme was to break the vicious circle of “not getting a job without experience and no experience could be gained without a job”. Mr Mahbub devotes time from his relentless schedule to teach the students.

He also sponsors charities, sports, cultural and community activities.

Mr Mahbub is passionate about photography and gardening. His amateur, yet artistic photography is loved by the wider audiences in social media. He plays badminton, listens to music and watches cricket.

Mr Mahbub is married to Nilufa Murshed, daughter of a well known Sylheti businessman of the 1960s – Mr Mosahid Ali. Their son, Nayeem Murshed, has graduated in Biochemistry from Imperial College London, and daughter, Nimah Murshed, is an A Level student.

Nobab joined Janomot in 1990 and became its Editor in 1997, a position he still holds. Janomot, the oldest ethnic Bengali newsweekly in Britain, was established on 21 February 1969 and has, with Nobab's diligence and dedication, become the leading popular newspaper within the Bangladeshi community in UK and Europe. His commitment to the journalistic integrity has ensured that Janomot continues to earn unparalleled respect across different members of the community.

Having studied for his Bachelor of Science in Quantity Surveying Building & Construction, he continued his studies and obtained a Diploma in Construction Management. He started his career working within the construction industry, and continued his career progression in local government working for different local authorities and housing associations. He is currently working for a leading housing association in London at senior management level and is a member of several professional bodies.

Nobab is one of the founder members of the London Bangla Press Club. Established in 1991, it is an important association for Bangladeshi journalists in Britain. In addition to carrying out his role first as Treasurer of the Club, he was President from 2014-16.

Nobab is respected for his voluntary work across various community and charity organisations in London. From 1990 to 1994, he was the General Secretary of the largest Bengali organisation BWAG (Surma Centre) in Camden, North London. Indeed, his role as General Secretary was during a seminal time as the local British Bangladeshi community developed in London and he was instrumental in working with Camden Council to deliver a dedicated building for the Surma Centre.

Nobab is the Chief Adviser of the historic Bangladesh Centre in Notting Hill, an active associate of London Borough Tower Hamlets 'Boishaki Mela Engagement Group' and is also an Adviser of the 'British Bangladeshi Power & Inspiration 100'. He has loved sport from an early age, representing his school and district at national level in both badminton and athletics in Bangladesh. This keen interest in sports led to him forming the Bengali Sports Council in UK 1988, in support of National Sports Council. He was founder Secretary of this organisation, encouraging and motivating youths to take an active part in sports. The engagement between community and youth centres was instrumental in helping British Bangladeshi integrate into both the wider community during the turbulent 80s in London as well as mainstream British sports culture. He helped create and foster a family atmosphere in this organization, which crucially continues to serve as a social networking space for other British Asian groups as well.

During the early eighties he formed Link Promotions, a cultural and promotional organisation, which has been performing plays and cultural shows in the UK. Since 1982, Nobab has written and successfully staged several plays across the country to critical acclaim. His status as playwright and director has had, perhaps, the most tangible impact within the British Bangladeshi community. His productions appeal directly to Bangladeshis and Nobab is unflinching in reflecting profound social dilemmas and tackling taboo subjects, such as forced marriages and drug use in the British Bangladeshi community.

He has published five books, and edited three, including The Racist Murder of Altaf Ali, which was important in highlighting the senseless murder of a Bengali East End, garment worker in 1978.

Nobab Uddin is married with two children.
